“LET ME GO TO THE HOUSE OF THE FATHER” said John Paul II on April 2nd, 2005. About six hours later his wish came true... At 9:37 p.m., Cardinal Leonardo Sandri announced the death of Saint Pope John Paul II to the faithful gathered in Saint Peter’s Square, saying, “Our beloved Father John Paul II has returned to the house of his Father.” Vatican City, Apr 2, 2025 / 04:00 am (CNA). <https://www.catholicworldreport.com/2025/04/02/pope-john-paul-ii-20-years-later-he-lives-in-hearts/>

In 1984, Pope John Paul II met in Rome with 300,000 young people from all over the world in a meeting that laid the foundations for today’s World Youth Day. Now 20 years since Pope John Paul II’s death on April 2, 2005, one of his closest collaborators says the Polish pontiff lives on in the hearts and memories of the many people who still feel connected to him today.

Cardinal Stanisław Dziwisz, John Paul II’s personal secretary for nearly four decades, told EWTN News during an interview in Krakow that visitors to the saint’s tomb in St. Peter’s Basilica “don’t go to the dead pope, they go to the living pope. He lives in hearts, he lives in memories.”

“There is still this dialogue between the pope and the people and the people with him. This is how I feel,” the 85-year-old cardinal and former archbishop of Krakow said. “He departed but at the same time remained with us. ... People cling to him, study him again.”

Archbishop Thomas Wenski of Miami, who has Polish parents, said John Paul II changed Poland and the world.

“The world that we live in today is in the shape it’s in, at least in some aspects, because of John Paul’s witness,” Wenski told EWTN News in Miami, “especially when he went to Poland in 1979 and inspired the people by saying ‘Be not afraid’ and asking the Holy Spirit ... to change the face of this land, this Polish land.”

Cardinal Dziwisz echoed this sentiment, noting that “many things changed in the Church and in the world under the influence of John Paul II and his activities. ... In Rome itself and in the Church, there was a belief that the future belonged to Marxism. And the pope said that the future belongs to human rights, to the human person, to human freedom, and not to the enslavement that Marx gave.”

Throughout his Papacy, John Paul II visited 129 countries. He also spoke 8 languages fluently.

Even when he was sick, he was active, Cardinal Dziwisz said. “He had perfect awareness until the end, until the last day and hour.” The retired Polish cardinal emphasized that even in suffering, John Paul II never complained: “What I know is what he said, that suffering has meaning. That’s how he approached it.” Pope John Paul II 20 years later: ‘He lives in people’s hearts’.

This Week's Message:

"It is precisely in the Passion, when the mercy of Christ is about to vanquish it, that sin most clearly manifests its violence and its many forms: unbelief, murderous hatred, shunning and mockery by the leaders and the people, Pilate's cowardice and the cruelty of the soldiers, Judas' betrayal—so bitter to Jesus, Peter's denial and the disciples' flight. However, at the very hour of darkness, the hour of the prince of this world, the sacrifice of Christ secretly becomes the source from which the forgiveness of our sins will pour forth inexhaustibly."
Catechism of the Catholic Church, 1851
