From the Diocese of Austin:

With the change in leadership there will need to be a slight change in Mass schedule, effective July 10th. These changes are necessary in order to continue offering two Masses at St. Stanislaus, while also serving the pastoral needs of the congregations at St. Ann and at Blessed Virgin Mary.

St. Stanislaus - Saturday - 6PM vigil and Sunday 8AM (rather than 9AM)

St. Ann – Sunday 10AM (Rather than 9:00AM)

Blessed Virgin Mary – 12Noon (rather than 11:30AM)

We make this announcement with the utmost of pastoral care and understanding for those for whom Mass schedule changes can be alarming.

Thoughts for Meditation

Jesus encountered a lack of respect and fairness when he entered a Samaritan village and was told to go elsewhere. Jesus' disciples felt the best way to respond to the unwelcome of the Samaritans described in the Gospel passage today, was by revenge. The disciples asked, "Lord, do you want us to bid fire come down from heaven and consume the Samaritans?" Jesus dismissed the suggestion and rebuked his disciples. His response, simply, was to leave the place and go to another village.

The Lord's way of acting clearly recalls a principle still applicable in our times: just because we are who we are does not automatically make everyone accept us. That may seem to be totally unfair from our point of view, but it is the reality of the world we live in. This was the experience of Jesus as well, being rejected, yet not defeated.

We are told in the Gospel passage for this Sunday that Jesus had set his face toward Jerusalem. This is another way of saying that Jesus was completely resolved with all his heart to carry out the heavenly Father's will, whatever the consequences might be. This in fact meant willingly going to his Passion and Death on the cross, for the salvation of the world.

It is God's grace that sets people free. Whatever keeps us from following God, be it anger, intolerance, prejudice, laziness or anything else, can only be removed by the power of the One who has risen from the dead. The big question is: do we allow God to go to work in our hearts to remove whatever blocks our hearing God's word and putting that word into action by our deeds of love?

Saint John Henry Cardinal Newman once put it in very earthy terms this way: "Our hearts must be broken up like ground, and dug and watered, and tended and cultivated, till they become as gardens, gardens of Eden, acceptable to our God, gardens in which the Lord God may walk and dwell."

The rest of the Gospel passage today concerns following in the footsteps of the Master, with questions from the Lord such as these: Are you ready and willing to follow me? Can you put aside everything that might keep us from doing God's will?

Our natural tendency is to put God's call off until later, to first go and bury departed loved ones, as a potential disciple of the Lord put it in the Gospel passage for this Sunday. Jesus says to that suggestion, "Leave the dead to bury their own dead." Jesus' point is that God must occupy first place in our life, so that all we do will flow from belonging to God, through thick and thin, sickness and health, until death calls us home. In other words, our choices in life must be completely influenced by the fundamental choice of being a follower of Jesus Christ. If we love God above all else, our other loves, of neighbor, family, friends and enemies, will ultimately fall into their proper place and time.

Jesus speaks clearly to his disciples that they must not look back once they have put their hands to the plow. If a farmer looks back while plowing, he'll end up with crooked furrows. To "not look back" means to keep one's focus on the goal for our lives, which is intended to be full happiness and union with God.

When the road gets rough, which it inevitably does in this short earthly journey, we are inclined to look back to when things were better or to grass that seems greener on the other side of the fence. The call is always to keep our eyes on the Lord in all trials, to stay on the course even when tempted to do otherwise, to keep in mind the ways of the Lord who has trodden the path before us and set the example of love without counting the cost.

It was for liberty that Christ freed us, says Saint Paul. We are to understand the freedom as "in Christ," that is, according to God's plan, a freedom that promotes love and demands that we love our neighbor as our self, "in accord with the Spirit," as Saint Paul expressed it.

The Lord's call is meant for a lifetime, not a week, a month or five years. Our God desires to show us the path of life, the fullness of joy in his presence. That is a life-long process, extending even beyond the grave. May we be strengthened to respond without fear. The Lord bestows help to the fainthearted, so we should be encouraged that help is near for each of us, in whatever circumstance we may find ourselves in the journey toward our God, in process now and perfected in heaven.

Abbot Christian Leisy, OSB Monastery of Christ in the Desert

THIS WEEK'S MESSAGE

"From the very beginning of the Church there were men and women who set out to follow Christ with greater liberty, and to imitate him more closely, by practicing the evangelical counsels. They led lives dedicated to God, each in his own way. Many of them, under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, became hermits or founded religious families. These the Church, by virtue of her authority, gladly accepted and approved."

(Catechism of the Catholic Church, 918)
