JULY 14TH : FEAST DAY OF SAINT KATERI TEKAKWITHA.

In 1656, deep in the leafy green wilderness where the town of Auriesville, New York, stands today, an infant girl was born in the village of Ossernenon, a stronghold of the fear-some Mohawk tribe.

Her mother, a Christian Algonquin, had been captured in a raid and wedded to the Mohawk chief, whose tribe was the fiercest of a confederacy known as the Iroquois, comprising the Mohawk, Oneida, Onondaga, Cayuga, and Seneca nations.

The Mohawks were the most resistant to the evangelization of the French missionaries and were ultimately responsible for the deaths of the eight North American martyrs. But, the grace of God was at work, and converts were already appearing among the Iroquois.

Suffering soon came to the young Kateri when, at the age of four, she contracted the deadly smallpox virus. Miraculously, she recovered but would bear the disease's pockmark scars for the rest of her life.

As she grew older, her persecution for her Christian beliefs grew more intense. She remained steadfast, declaring, "I want to be a Christian, even though I should die for it." Her persecution was exacerbated when she made a vow of virginity and refused to marry according to her parents' wishes.

In time, Catholic missionaries visited her village, and at the age of 19, she was baptized, taking the name Kateri, Mohawk for Catherine, as a mark of her rebirth into her new life with Christ. As she refused to work on Sunday, the Lord's day of rest, her parents would not allow her to eat.

She decided to pursue her life of prayer at Kahnawake, a Catholic mission in Quebec, where, residing with other native converts, she continued to spend time in penance and devotions. The more than 200 miles she traversed to reach it are testimony to her radical resolve to practice her faith.

By 1680, Kateri's health was failing fast. Just four days short of Easter, on April 17, she received the Last Rites. Her last words sum up her life's mission: "Jesus, Mary, I love you."

Following Kateri's death, God performed a miracle to confirm her saintly life, removing all traces of the smallpox disease that had marred her face and body. Pope Pius XII declared her venerable on January 3, 1943, and she was declared a saint by Pope John Paul II on June 22, 1980. by Joseph Gensens <https://www.returntoorder.org/author/joseph-gensens/>

“Jesus asks for childlike abandonment to the providence of our heavenly Father, who takes care of his children’s smallest needs: ‘Therefore do not be anxious, saying, “What shall we eat?” or “What shall we drink?” Your heavenly Father knows that you need them all. But seek first his kingdom and his righteousness, and all these things shall be yours as well.’”

Beads of Peace

Members of St. Margaret Catholic Church in Riverton, Wyoming make and distribute mission rosaries mainly to overseas, but also to Native American communities, Catholic pro-life sidewalk counselors and other Catholic missions, without any cost to the recipients. They accept no monetary donations for this work.

Instead, they ask us to conduct a Rosary Drive at our parish in which our members can give new, old or used Rosaries (as long as they're unbroken and ready for prayer) to be collected and sent to them.

A box has been placed in the narthex of our church to collect Rosaries for this worthy purpose. Thank you!
